

Hi everyone, my name is Rover and I'm the CPB of Team Beat. We are a group of 3 Game Studies and Engineering master students and are looking to enter the gaming market. We have a nice mix of backgrounds ranging from computer science to electro engineering and some arts and humanities.

Currently we are working on our latest title Beat Invaders. it's a Spotify integrated one-button rhythm game where you defend the planet against the incoming alien invasion. By racking up combo point you will deal more damage against the invading aliens.

Our unique selling point are full Spotify integration. You can load in any Spotify song you like and our program will convert your song to a unique experience. This makes it so that Beat Invaders has near infinite replayability. Lastly this is a one button game, meaning the whole game is controlled with one button which you tap to the rhythm of the music. Making it very accessible.

Now why are we here? We have one major problem, we are students. This means we are super broke, but this also comes with it's benefits. We have a lot of time, passion, energy and motivation to make awesome games! This is why we are not asking for a lot of money, but instead we are asking for PIZZA! Please help us sustain our selves throughout our journey into the gaming market!

Now now now, pizza does comes with a secret purpose. As we are new to this market we need to gather a lot of knowledge and it's going to be a very bumpy ride. Because of that we are looking for someone that would like to show us the way into this crazy market and preferably while eating some pizza. A guide so to say, it's dangerous to go alone after all.

What can we offer in return? We are part of an amazing masters program where many great future game developers will come from looking for great places to work. In addition It is an extremely international group of students from all over the world so our connections will go all over the place at some point in time.

Lastly a quick timeline, we currently have 3 pizza nights planned for next month and are planning to release Beat Invaders by the end of next month.

My name is Rover the CPB of Team Beat if you are interested please contact us and thank you for listening